Sacajawea

Biography

Sacajawea was a Shoshone Indian woman who was part of the Lewis and Clark expedition across the continent. She was only 16 years old when she helped Lewis and Clark's men become the first white people to reach the Pacific Ocean--and come back alive.

Sacajawea knew how to live in the wilderness. She helped Lewis and Clark talk to American Indians they met. She was the only woman on the expedition, and she carried a baby on her back the whole way.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Biography

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. was a leader of the fight for equal rights. Back then, black Americans did not have the same rights as white Americans. Dr. King did not think this was fair. He made great speeches and led peaceful protests to make the government change the laws. He is most famous for his speech called "I Have a Dream."

Sadly, Dr. King was killed in 1968 by someone who did not like his ideas. But other people continued his work, and today all Americans have the same rights.
